Subscription Community Supported Agriculture (CSA) Operations now Eligible for NAP

Beginning with 2015 and subsequent year's subscription community supported agriculture operations are now eligible to participate in NAP. A subscription community supported agriculture operation means a farmer-driven operation where owns or leases the farm, organizes the Community Supported Agriculture, produces the farm products, and recruits the customer members or subscribers. However CSA's which fall under the definition of shareholder community supported agriculture operations are not eligible for NAP. A shareholder community supported agriculture operation means a consumer-driven operation where the consumer organizes the community supported agriculture, owns or leases the farm, and hires a farmer to produce the farm products.
